· Proclamation of Oklahoma Chief Executive, issued March 24, + 🕈 1908, on signing prohibition en- 🕈

Guthrie, Ok., March 24.-Governor Haskell signed senate Bill No. 61 for the enforcement of state-wide prohibipresence of about forty people congregated in the senate chamber. A photographer was present and caught the group as the governor was in the act of writing his signature. After the bill had been approved there was a demand for souvenirs in the shape of pens, blotters and the ink bottle. The governor used three pens handed him by Rev. E. N. Sweet, pastor of the Methodist church of Tulsa, and who nothing in the course of a year, the was attached to the anti-saloon league state would not lose a total of $15,during the constitutional convention, and the state campaign. One of these was given to Senator Billups, author BRYAN COUNTY'S "BLUE BRIGADE" of the bill, another to Representative Murdock of Pawnee County, chairman of the house prohibition committee, and the other to Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the Oklahoma Antisalcon league.

Three other pens the governor used in finishing the name of the state and on his force and thirteen prisoners of his office, went to Rev. Sweet, the are doing something to earn the three other rates in effect now lower than ator Williams of Weatherford.

Signing of the bill was delayed for the arrival of members of the antisaloon league. There were present in addition to the leaguers, a number of senators and representatives, members of the local ministrial associa- be kept up until the fines and sention, the W. C. T. Approval of the bill today culminates a work began four years ago by the National Anti-Saloon League before the committee on territories, of territories was proposed.

Enforcement Code Praised. came here as the representative of the national organization and directed the work for the last two years, said today that the Oklahoma law contains the best enforcement code ever chiefly from the Maine law and the search and seizure sections were taken from the law of Ohio.

After Governor Haskell had signed the bill he issued a proclamation to the people of Oklahoma and to the public officers whose duty it is to enforce the law. He said in part: "We now have the detail law fully sufficient to carry State-wide prohibition into effect. It is not your privilege nor mine to waste time discussing the questions as to whether we would have drawn this code of laws exactly as it is. There are questions upon which most people differ and any law of great extent or consequence is invariably framed to meet the approval of at least a majority of ma and is entitled to the support of all citizens and most emphatically of the public officers who have assumed the responsibility and taken their oath to enforce the laws. We have the utmost confidence that faithful service will be rendered by all such officers.

"The dispensary provides for liquor when needed in sickness, and leaves no excuse for violating the law. Remember this is not a beverage dispensary, as you would be made to believe. It is not a barrel of whiskey with the head knocked in and a tin cup langing conveniently near, but it does mean liquors put up under state supervision in sealed packages, stamped with consecutive numbers, and sold only upon the written prescription of a reputable physician, based upon a personal diagnosis of the patient's condition and for every package according to its number the local agent must return to the state agent the receipt of the purchaser and the physician's certificate.

Local Agency is Discussed.

"The local agency can not become a booze joint. The complaint that the state is degrading itself and degrading its women and children by putting these medicinal sales of liquor under its own control and direction, is a sudden awakening of pretended morality when it comes from a class of newspapers or individuals, who, in the late election were so unmindful of the morals of the state that they bitterly fought the adoption of prohi-

"Remembering their attitude at that time, I warn you that they are utterly unfit to advise we who are engaged in fighting for practical enforcement of prohibition and the elevation of moral conditions today, and I therefore appeal to every public officer of the state, its counties and municipalities and to every good citizen of the state, to join hands in the ention, giving it the force of law, at forcement of a law which is bound to 12:33 o'clock this afternoon, in the disprove the time worn statement that prohibition does not prohibit."

The governor says that the statement the state will have to sell $1,-800,000 worth of liquor to meet expenses of the business is untrue.

"If the total sales throughout the state in the course of a year amount to $50,000, the state will not lose a eent, or if the sale were absolutely

State Can't Help.

There has during the past several weeks been lots of activity among veterans and sons of veterans of the civil war looking to the early erection of an old soldiers home, which the state should be expected to maintain by appropriation.

These plans have been seriously discomfitted through late decisions. the character of which the hereunder communication indicates:

My Dear Sir:-

This is to notify you that the meeting of the Confederate Veterans that was called to meet at Shawnee, Okla., on April 4, 1908, has been called off the election in said ward. for the reason that it has been ascertained that under the constitution of the state of Oklahoma, it would be impossible for the legislature to make an appropriation for the maintenance of the home in case it was built.

Very truly yours, WM. M. CROSS, A. P. WATSON, J. J. McALESTER.

HOW TO STORE HOT WATER.

System by Which a Large Supply Can Be Kept on Hand.

At the last meeting of the Pacific Coast Gas association a method was discussed for storing hot water in connection with a kitchen boiler supplied with heat from a gas burner. In the accompanying sketch is shown the combination of this boiler connected to a larger boiler in which the water is stored. The arrangement is suggested as one already being used in apartment houses where, for example, a 200-gallon storage tank is connected to two boilers, furnishing hot water for 50 basins, four baths and wash trays. The boilers were installed after oil burners and coal heaters had failed to give satisfaction. It will be seen that the hot water from the gas heater can be delivered directly into the hot water service pipe, or it can be sent to the storage tank alongside, valves being provided in both of these delivery pipes. Naturally it will require that the user understand the scheme of the connections, else the case might happen when all the water pipes to and from the heater were shut off by the valves, with the result that when heating is begun there will be an expansion of the water, the development of a dangerous pressure and bursting of the tank. It will be seen that the cold water supply is brought to the storage tank, and that

This is to indicate how a pipe from a second heater would be connected to the cross at the top of the storage tank.

OUR MINERAL PRODUCTS.

Immense Increase in the Quantity of Metals Mined.

The value of the mineral products of the United States for the year 1906, as shown by the geological survey report, exceeded by $279,000,000 the total of the preceding year, and by $795,000,000 that of the year 1900. As compared with the total for 1880 the increase is enormous, amounting to $1,556,000,000. The total sum for 1906 is $1,902,517,565. The production first surpassed a thousand million in 1899. The value of the metallic products in 1906 was $886,110,856, which is $184,000,000 in excess of that of 1905. Iron takes the 'lead, with a value of $505,700,000; then comes copper, $177,595,888; then gold. $94,373,800; next lead. $39,917,442; next silver, $38,256,400; and then zinc, $24,362,668. The value of the aluminum produced was $4,262,286. Among non-metallic products bituminous coal stands at the head with $381,162,115, Pennsylvania anthracite following with $131,917,694. The clay products are valued at $161,032,722.

HOW TO MIX WHITE LEAD.

Method of Hauling Which Will Make the Task Easier.

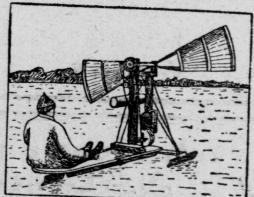

When a keg of white lead has stood for some months the lead becomes denser, owing to the soaking away of the oil into the wood. It is more difficult to work up into a smooth paint when in this condition, although it may have improved in quality. To remedy this to a great extent, take a stout, narrow paddle and put it into the lead until it strikes the bottom of the keg, then work the paddle back and forth from side to side for a few times, and the mass will soon become quite plastic, and then it may be removed into pots for further breaking up and thinning for use. This will save much time over the usual way of first taking the lead out of the keg and breaking it up into the pot, says the Master Painter.

White lead should always be beaten up before adding thinners, and then unite readily with the paint.

> Electrified by Sun and Moon. Recent observations made on the Pic du Midi, in the Pyrenees, confirm the results previously obtained at lower altitudes, which show that both the sun and moon induce a positive electric charge on the earth. The solar charge varies from one to six volts per minute, according to the state of the atmosphere. It is absorbed by clouds and by layers of moist air. The full moon induces a positive electric induction analogous to that caused by the sun.

> > Method of Testing Circuits.

In testing out electric circuits the following method is sure and simple: Twist the ends of the line toget and attach two double-bladed knives to the terminal wires of the test box by closing the large blade of each knife, one on each wire. Open the little blades and cut through the insulation close to where the connections are made to the main line and work is done properly.

chicken. Two tin tacks will serve for eyes; a bit of pointed wood will do for the beak. Let the bread go into the opening quite a little way to make it more secure. A few feathers inserted at the rear will look like a tail, and two toothpicks will serve as legs. Now your chicken is complete and ready to be made to stand up. Next take a couple of bent iron wires, about an inch and a half long. One is inserted a little back of the imitation legs, and is kept, as are all the other features, in place by white sealing wax; the other will serve as a support for a bit of sugar.

SUSIE.

The True Story of a Little Squealing

When Susie was a little squealing baby, Uncle Hezekiah adopted her. She was all alone in the world, and so was he. He wrapped her in a piece of old carpet and tucked her into a box filled with hay in the wood shed.

" A queer crib for a baby," you say. But Susie thought it was delightful. She had never seen such a nice bed before, for she had been born in the slummiest of slums-to tell the truth, in a pig pen.

That pigs are really cleanly creatures, no one could doubt who saw Suste's milk-white coat. She was the dearest, sweetest little baby piggy have come in to spend an hour with in the world. Her pretty pink nose you and conversa- and little pink ears and the curl of her tion lags, you and little tail were simply irresistible. So one of your thought Uncle Hezekiah, as he fed her a bowl of warm bread and milk three personate this times each day.

But pretty soon Susie was able to feed herself, for baby pigs are not babies long. In a short time she was trotting all over the farm at her foster-father's heels; out to the hen house to feed the chickens; back to the pump to get a pail of water for Sam, the old horse; down to the berry patch to pick berries for supper; over to the passure after the cow. Wherever Uncle Hezekiah went Susie went, too, or wanted to. It was very funny to see the old farmer and his faithful follower.

One day Uncle Hezekiah had to go to town on business. He was already in sight of the court house tower chamber. when he remembered that he had not locked Susie in her shed as usual. He turned around and looked behind him left, an hour ago." in some uneasiness. In the distance was a small cloud of dust. It came nearer and nearer.

Yes, it was Susie! She had followed him these three miles to town. Uncle Hezekiah stopped his horse. Susie's feet clattered faster over the dusty road as she saw the beloved face of her master turned toward her. When she reached the buggy she gave a joyons grunt of greeting.
"Well, Susie, what does this mean?"

Uncle Hezekiah spoke sternly. "No one told you you might come. Go straight home!'

The joyous twist of Susie's tail unwound, and she stood looking at him with mournful eyes, as he whipped up his horse and rolled away as fast as Sam's stiff old legs could carry him. It was eight o'clock in the evening before Uncle Hezekiah had finished his errands and started for the farm. He had reached the top of the hill where he had left Susie in the afternoon, when he thought he heard a familiar sound in the darkness. He listened:

'Ugh! Ugh! Ugh! Ugh!" The tones were as full of love and longing as pig language can express. It was the voice of the faithful Susie! She had waited for him all the afternoon and evening in this same spot where he had left her. How could he scold her?

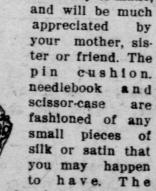

"Is that you, Suste, my girl?" he called. "Well! well! You must be hungry. So am I. Let's go home as fast as we can and get some supper." Susie trotted happily along under the buggy. She was a very intelligent pig, and she pricked up her pink ears to try to hear that song Uncle Hezekiah was chanting in his deep bass. He was chuckling so she could hardly understand him, but it sounded like:

"This little pig went to market, This little pig stayed at home. This little pig cried: 'Wee, wee, wee I can't find my way home." Martha D. Taylor, in Detroit Free

E. C. Dinwiddle, superintendent of the Oklahoma Antisaloon league.

Three other pens the governor used in finishing the name of the state and of his office, went to Rev. Sweet, the ladies of the W. C. T. U. and to Senator Williams of Weatherford.

Signing of the bill was delayed for the arrival of members of the antisaloon league. There were present in addition to the leaguers, a number of shape. senators and representatives, members of the local ministrial association, the W. C. T. U. the Salvation Army and officers of the state admin-

Approval of the bill today culminates a work began four years ago by the National Anti-Saloon League before the committee on territories, of congress, when statehood for the twin territories was proposed.

Enforcement Code Praised.

Rev. E. C. Dinwiddle of Ohio, who came here as the representative of the national organization and directed the work for the last two years, said today that the Oklahoma law con tains the best enforcement code ever written. The agency feature came chiefly from the Maine law and the search and seizure sections were taken from the law of Ohio.

After Governor Haskell had signed the bill he issued a proclamation to the people of Oklahema and to the public officers whose duty it is to enforce the law. He said in part:

"We now have the detail law fully sufficient to carry State-wide prohibition into effect. It is not your priving the questions as to whether to would have drawn this code of laws exactly as it is. There are questions upon which most people differ and any law of great extent or consequence is invariably framed to mee the approval of at least a majority of the legislative body, but this code is now the law of the state of Oklahamat and is entitled to the support of all citizens and most emplicationly of the public officers who have assumed the responsibility and taken their outli to entertie the laws. We have the uti at confidence that faithful service will be rendered by all such off

"The dispensary provides for liquor when needed in sickness, and leaves no excuse for violating the law. Remember this is not a beverage dispensary, as you would be made to believe. It is not a barrel of whiskey with the head knocked in and a tin cup hanging conveniently near, but it does mean liquors put up under state su pervision in scaled packages, stamped with consecutive numbers, and sold only upon the written prescription of a reputable physician, based upon a personal diagnosis of the patient's condition and for every package according to its number the local agent must return to the state agent the receipt of the purchaser and the physician's certificate.

Local Agency is Discussed.

The local agency can not become a booze joint. The complaint that the state is degrading itself and degradhig its women and children by putting these medicinal sales of liquor under its own control and direction, is a sudden awakening of pretended morality when it comes from a class of newspapers or individuals, who, in the date election were so unmindful of and leaves no excuse for violat-

"Remembering their attitude at that beverage dispensary, as you would be made to believe. • The recommendation of Okiahoma Chief by unfit to advise we who are engaged in fighting for practical enforcement of prohibition and the elevation of moral conditions today, and I therefore appeal to every public officer Haskell signed senate Bill No. 61 for palities and to every good citizen of of the state, its countles and municithe state, to join hands in the en forcement of a law which is bound to disprove the time worn statement that prohibition does not prohibit."

The governor says that the state ment the state will have to sell $1. group as the governor was in the act 800,000 worth of liquor to meet expenses of the business is untrue. He says:

"If the total sales throughout the state in the course of a year amount to $50,000 the state will not lose a eent, or if the sale were absolutely nothing in the course of a year, the state would not lose a total of $15,-

Sheriff Hamilton Breaks the Monotony of Jail Life-Working the Roads,

This morning Sheriff Hamilton tarted a new order of things in the county jail. Three new deputies are receipt both at the receiving and deon his force and thirteen prisoners are doing something to earn the three "squares" they are getting every day, Today they are doing some very effective work on the Cox's Chanel road. northwest of the city, and they will keep on until the road is in first class They will move to 'fresh fields of endeavor," for this work will be kept up until the fines and sentences are worked out.

This is the latest and best move nade by Bryan Countys' sheriff and his able coadjutors, Judge Phillips and out the consent of the commission. County Attorney McIntosh. In place of a "palace of pleasure." Bryan county's bastile now holds possibilities that will be a still greater deterent to the bootlegger and the tough. In place of the county paying board for its involuntary "guests," there will be some return and the county roads will soon show the benefit of the new order of things.

The deputies in charge of the road gangs are W. H. Vanhright, A. O. Cardin and Wm. McFetridge,-Durant

State Can't Help.

There has during the past several seeks been lots of activity among veterans and sons of veterans of the civil war looking to the early erection of an old soldiers home, which the state should be expected to maintain by appropriation

These plans have been seriously discomfitted through late decisions the character of which the hereunder communication indicates My Dear Sir ---

This is to notify you that the meeting of the Confederate Veterans that was called to meet at Shawnee Okla on April 4 1908, has been called off for the reason that it has been ascertained that under the constitution of the state of Oklahoma it would be impossible for the legislature to make an appropriation for the maintenance of the home in case it was built

System by Which a Large Supply Can Be Kept on Hand.

At the last meeting of the Pacific Coast Gas association a method was discussed for storing hot water in conction with a kitchen boiler supplied with heat from a gas burner. In the accompanying sketch is shown the combination of this boiler connected to a larger boiler in which the water is stored. The arrangement is sug-gested as one already being used in apartment houses where, for example a 200-gallon storage tank is connected to two boilers, furnishing hot water for 50 basins, tour baths and wash trays. The botiers were installed after oil burners and coal heaters had failed to give satisfaction. It will be seen that the hot water from the gas heater can be delivered directly into the hot water service pipe, or it can be sent to the storage tank alongside, valves being provided in both of these delivery pipes. Naturally it will require that the user understand the scheme of the connections, else the case might happen when all the water pipes to and from the heater were shat off by the valves, with the result that when heating is begun there will be an expansion of the water, the de velopment of a dangerous pressure and bursting of the tank. It will be seen that the cold water supply is brought to the storage tank, and that pipe leads from the storage tank to the hot water heater Sediment cocks are provided for both the storage and the gas heater. Above the gas heater is a so-called vent cap discharge for the products of combus-tion from the gas burner, which is shown below the boiler with an air mixer Behind the pipes of the gas-heated boiler will be seen a pipe slanting upward from the storage This is to indicate how a pipe from a second heater would be con-nected to the cross at the top of the

Method of Hauling Which Will Make the Task Easier.

When a keg of white lead has stood some months the lead becomes for some months the lead becomes denser, owing to the soaking away of the oil into the wood. It is more difficult to work up into a smooth paint when in this condition, although it may have improved in quality. To remedy this to a great extent, take a stout, narrow paddle and put it into the lead until it strikes the bottom of the ker, then work the needle back. of the keg, then work the paddle back and forth from side to side for a few times, and the mass will soon be-come quite plastic, and then it may be removed into pots for further break-ing up and thinning for use. This will save much time over the usual way of first taking the lead out of the heg and breaking it up into the pot, says the Master Painter.

White lead should always be beaten up before adding thinners, and then the japan should be added and well beaten up with the lead. If possible let the mass stand a few hours and then the thinners may be added to the desired amount. This will render the attaining of the paint unnecessary unattaining of the paint unnecessary un-less the skins are present. If colors are to be added, beat them up sepa-rately and thin out so that they will unite readily with the paint.

Electrified by Sun and Moon. Recent observations made on the Pic du Midi, in the Pyreneès, confirm the results previously obtained at low-er allitudes, which show that both the sun and moon induce a positive electric charge on the earth. The solar charge varies from one to six volts per minute, according to the state of the atmosphere. It is absorbed by clouds and by layers of moist sir.
The full moon induces a positive electric induction analogous to caused by the sun.

Method of Testing Circuits. In testing out electric circuits the following method is sure and simple: Twist the ends of the line together and attach two double-bladed knives to the terminal wires of the test box by closing the large blade of each knife, one on each wire. Open the little blades and cut through the in sulation eigse to where the compa tions are minds to the main line and test. The bell will ring when the work is some property.

The True Story of a Little Squealing

When Susie was a little squealing paby, Uncle Hezekiah adopted her. The was all alone in the world, and so was he. He wrapped her in a piece of old carpet and tucked her into a box filled with hay in the wood shed.

SUSIE.

"A queer crib for a baby," you say.
But Susie thought it was delightful.
She had never seen such a nice bed before, for she had been born in the slummiest of slums—to tell the truth, in a pia nen.

In a pig pen.

That pigs are really cleanly creatures, no one could doubt who saw Suste's milk-white cost. She was the dearest, sweetest little baby piggy in the world. Her pretty pink nose and little pink ears and the our of her little tail were simply (restetible So little tail were simply irresistible. So thought Uncle Hezekiah, as he fed her a bowl of warm bread and milk three times each day.

But pretty soon Susie was able to feed herself, for baby pigs are not babies long. In a short time she was trotting all over the farm at ber fos ter-father's heels; out to the hen house to feed the chickens; back to the pump to get a pail of water for Sam, the old horse, down to the herry patch to pick berries for supper, over to the pasture after the cow. Wherever Uncle Hezekiah went Susie went, too, or wanted to. It was very funny to see the old farmer and his faithful follower

One day Uncle Hezekiah had to go to town on business He was already in sight of the court house tower when he remembered that he had not locked Susie in her shed as usual. He turned around and looked behind him in some uneasiness In the distance was a small cloud of dust. It came earer and nearer.
Yes, it was Susie' She had followed him these three miles to town. Uncle Hezekiah stopped his horse, Susie's feet clattered faster over the dusty road as she saw the beloved face of her master turned toward her. When he reached the buggy she gave a joyote grunt of greeting. "Well, Susie, what does this mean?"

Uncle Hezekiah spoke sternly. "No one told you you might come. Go straight home!"

The joyous twist of Susie's tail unwound, and she stood looking at him with mournful eyes, as he whipped up his horse and rolled away as fast as

Sam's stiff old legs could carry him. It was eight o'clock in the evening before Uncle Hezekiah had finished his errands and started for the farm. He had reached the top of the hill where he had left Susie in the after noon, when he thought he heard a familiar sound in the darkness. He listened:

"Ugh! Ugh! Ugh! Ugh!" The tones were as full of love and longing as pig language can express. It was the voice of the faithful Susie! She had waited for him all the after-noon and evening in this same spot where he had left her. How could he

"Is that you, Susie, my girl?" he called. "Well! well! You must be hungry. So am I. Let's go home as fast as we can and get some support."
Susie trotted happily along under Susie trotted mappiny along under the buggy. She was a very intelligent pig, and she pricked up her pink ears to try to hear that song Uncle Hoze-kiah was chanting in his deep bass, kish was chanting in his deep bass. He was chuckling so she could hardly understand him, but it sounded like:

"This little pig went to market.
This little pig stayed at home,
This little pig cried. 'Wee, wee, wee'
I can't find my way home"

Guthrie, Ok., March 24.—Governor Haskell signed senate Bill No. 61 for the enforcement of state-wide prohibition, giving it the force of law, at 12:33 o'clock this afternoon, in the presence of about forty people congregated in the senate chamber. A photographer was present and caught the group as the governor was in the act of writing his signature. After the bill had been approved there was a demand for souvenirs in the shape of pens, blotters and the ink bottle. The governor used three pens handed him by Rev. E. N. Sweet, pastor of the Methodist church of Tulsa, and who was attached to the anti-saloon leagueduring the constitutional convention, and the state campaign. One of these was given to Senator Billups, author of the bill, another to Representative Murdock of Pawnee County, chairman of the house prohibition committee and the other to Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie. superintendent of the Oklahoma Antisalcon league.

Three other pens the governor used n finishing the name of the state and of his office, went to Rev. Sweet, the dadies of the W. C. T. U. and to Senator Williams of Weatherford.

Signing of the bill was delayed for the arrival of members of the antisaloon league. There were present in addition to the leaguers, a number of senators and representatives, members of the local ministrial associa tion, the W. C. T. U. the Salvation Army and officers of the state admin-

There has during the past several eeks been lots of activity among veterans and sons of veterans of the ivil war looking to the early erection of an old soldiers home, which the state should be expected to maintain by appropriation

These plans have been seriously discomfitted through late decisions the character of which the hereunder communication indicates My Dear Sir --

This is to notify you that the meeting of the Confederate Veterans that was called to meet at Shawpee Okla on April 4 1908, has been called off for the reason that it has been ascertained that under the constitution of the state of Oklahoma it would be impossible for the legislature to make an appropriation for the maintenance of the home in case it was built

System by Which a Large Supply Can Be Kept on Hand.

At the last meeting of the Pacific Coast Gas association a method was discussed for storing hot water in con-nection with a kitchen boiler supplied with heat from a gas burner. with heat from a gas burner. In the combination of this boilers connected to a larger boiler in which the water is stored. The arrangement is suggested as one already being used in apartment houses where, for example, a 200-gallon storage tank is connected to two boilers turnishing hot water. to two boilers, furnishing hot water for 50 basins, four baths and wash trays. The botters were installed after oli burners and coal heaters had failed to give satisfaction. It will be seen that the hot water from the gas heater can be delivered directly into the hot water service pipe, or it can be sent to the storage tank alongside, valves being provided in both of these delivery pipes. Naturally it will require that the user understand the scheme of the connections, else the case might happen when all the water to and from the heater were shat off by the valves, with the result that when heating is begun there will be an expansion of the water, the development of a dangerous pressure and bursting of the tank. It will be seen that the cold water supply is brought to the storage tank, and that a pipe leads from the storage tank to the hot water heater. Sediment cocks are provided for both the storage tank and the gas heater. Above the gas heater is a so-called vent cap discharge for the products of combustion from the gas burner, which is shown below the boiler with an air mixer. Behind the pipes of the gasheated bolier will be seen a pipe slanting upward from the storage tank. This is to indicate how a pipe from a second heater would be con-nected to the cross at the top of the

When a keg of white lead has stood for some months the lead, becomes denser, owing to the soaking away of the oil into the wood. It is more difficult to work up into a smooth paint when in this condition, although it may have improved in quality. To remedy this to a great extent, take a t, narrow paddle and put it into lead until it strikes the bottom of the keg, then work the paddle back and forth from side to side for a few times, and the mass will soon be-come quite plastic, and then it may be removed into pots for further break ing up and thinning for use. This will save much time over the usual way of first taking the lead out of the keg and breaking it up into the pot. the Master Painter.

the japan should be added and well beaten up with the lead. If possible let the mass stand a few hours and then the thinners may be added to the desired amount. This will render the atraining of the paint unnecessary tess the skins are present. If colors are to be added, beat them up separately and thin out so that they will unite readily with the paint.

> Recent observations made on the Pic du Midi, in the Pyrenees, confirm sults previously obtained at low er altitudes, which show that both the sun and moon induce a positive electric charge on the earth. The solar charge varies from one to six volts per minute, according to the state of the atmosphere. It is absorbed by clouds and by layers of moist air. The full moon induces a positive elec tric induction analogous to that caused by the sun.

In testing out electric circuits the following method is sure and simple: Twist the ends of the line together and attach two double-bladed knives to the terminal wires of the test box by closing the large blade of each knife, one on each wire. Open the little blades and cut through the in sulation close to where the connec-tions are finds to the fining line and test. The ball will ring when the work is done properly.

But pretty soon Susie was able to feed herself, for baby pigs are not

bables long. In a short time she was rotting all over the farm at her for ter-father's heels; out to the hen house to feed the chickens; back to the pump to get a pail of water for Sam, the old horse; down to the berry patch to pick berries for supper; over to the passure after the cow. Wherever Uncle Hezekish went Susie went, too, or wanted to. It was very funny to see the old farmer and his faithful follower.

One day Uncle Hezeklah had to go to town on business. He was already in sight of the court house tower when he remembered that he had not incked Susie in her shed as usual. He turned around and looked behind bim in some uneariness. In the distance was a small cloud of dust. It came earer and nearer.

Yes, it was Susie! She had fol-lowed him these three miles to town.
